

These are the 6 best food and drink events in Dallas this week

November 14, 2017

Diana Oates

This week in Dallas, there is wine dinner with tickets going for $695 a pop. In less expensive news, whiskey and chili are making this week's roundup oh-so-fall, y'all. Enjoy.

Saturday, November 18

Beaujolais Nouveau at CiboDivino Marketplace

This event features French bites from chef Daniele Puleo, Ryan Olmos, and neighboring chef Julien Eelsen of Whisk Crepes Cafe. Guests can also expect French-themed entertainment and glasses of the famed Beaujolais Nouveau — which is a chilled red wine served during the annual tradition in France. This event is free and is happening from noon-5 pm.